Everybody's Talking!

Falling apart: When the cops pull someone over, it's usually for speeding or for having a burned-out tail light. But in King's Lynn, Norfolk (England), police were totally taken aback when they stopped a motorist and looked inside the car. They pulled the driver over because of the poor state of the vehicle's exterior; it had no headlights, no front side panels, and a flat tire. The situation inside the car was even worse. The driver's seat was an upside-down metal bucket, and the "steering wheel" was a pair of pliers. The driver must not have been aware that a vehicle that is not roadworthy is likely to be pulled over and the driver likely to be charged.

Food is flying: Anyone who has ever wanted to flip over a table to release frustrations can do so in the controlled environment of an annual contest. The World Chabudai-Gaeshi Tournament takes place in a shopping mall in Yahaba, Iwate Prefecture (Japan). Fake food is placed on a small tea table and participants sit in front of it. The idea is to flip the table and send the plastic food flying through the air. The winner is the contestant whose food lands at the greatest distance away. The phrase "chabudai gaeshi" actually means "upending the tea table."

Stone art: Collecting odd-shaped stones and pebbles when beachcombing is a fun activity for many people. But for Stefano Furlani of Italy, it is an artistic expression. He arranges his beach "finds" into amazing and complex works of art. His stone "paintings" include a dancing couple, a grandfather holding a baby, and a woman and child walking in the rain with an umbrella. He fits together stones of different shapes and colors to form the images. For example, small stones clump together to make a baby's curly hair, while a long, curved stone serves as the arm of a man hugging his girlfriend.

Theft-free: There is no police station in the village of Eibenthal in western Romania. The reason for that is that people don't steal. In this community, a bread truck comes from a neighboring town to deliver bread to families. People leave their money in bags hanging from posts, along with the number of loaves required. The bread man leaves the loaves and the change. The people of Eibenthal are proud of the fact that everyone respects each other's property. They only set foot in a neighbor's yard if invited to do so. Not only that, Eibenthal is a peaceful, beautiful community surrounded by hills and mountains.

Did You Know...

Lots of pizza: Pizza is popular food choice in the United States. About 100 acres of pizza are consumed daily by Americans. That adds up to about 3 billion pizzas sold per year.

Famous guitarist: Before becoming a sensation in his own right, American rock and roll musician Jimi Hendrix played with other famous performers, including Wilson Pickett and Little Richard. Hendrix died in 1970 at age 27.

Big chase: Pamplona, Navarra (Spain), is the site of a week-long summer festival called Fiesta de San Fermín. During this festival, the encierro (the running of the bulls) takes place. Every day at 8 a.m., bulls chase people through the cobblestone streets to a finish line.

Pet with a purpose: People are often assisted in various ways by service animals. For example, a "hearing" dog can be trained to lead someone with hearing impairment toward the source of a sound, such as an alarm.

Book-based movie: The Shawshank Redemption, a movie that debuted in theaters in 1994, was based on a short story by American writer Stephen King. The story is called "Rita Hayworth and the Shawshank Redemption."

On the Lighter Side

Self-esteem: The feeling that makes us attribute our failures to bad luck and our success to good judgment.

Doctor: "I'm afraid your condition is fairly advanced."
Patient: "It was in its early stages when I sat down in your waiting room!"

What did the patent office employee say about Edison's new lightbulb? "Whose bright idea is this?"

If a bird makes fun of you, it must be a mockingbird.
